Blue Sky Young Researchers and Innovation Award 2018

We invite all early-stage researchers to apply for a chance to receive the Blue Sky Young Researchers Europe award! The contest, led by CEPI, will shortlist eight finalists, three of whom will receive the award and automatically be submitted to the ICFPA Blue Sky global competition. The finalists will receive an all-expenses paid trip to Brussels, Belgium, to present their work at CEPI's major annual event in October (date to be confirmed).

Eligibility criteria

Candidates must:

- Have an idea that could revolutionise the paper industry
- Be under 35 years of age
- Currently be working under the supervision of a research institute or university
- Be fluent in English with good presentation skills

The procedure is simple. Just fill in the form in the link below.
